

President's Message Werner Willoughby

The months of July and August are exciting times for TSCA, as they will be important and meaningful applications of our Mission Statement – “To promote friendship, goodwill and understanding between the City of Torrance and the City of Kashiwa, Japan through a people-to-people, citizen diplomacy approach and through joint participation in mutually established programs.”

During these two months, our seven Torrance student delegates and their Adult Leader will visit Kashiwa for three weeks, to be followed by eight Kashiwa student delegates and their Adult Leader who will visit our city for about the same length of time.

These cultural exchanges are a culmination of months of planning, beginning in December 2018 when the TSCA Torrance Student Selection committee began the process of determining our delegates. Then, the Bunka-Sai committee met monthly, organizing the major fundraiser that would provide the financial resources. A special thank you to Steven Ihde and his August Activities Committee and to Cheryl Yamauchi and her Host Family Committee for all their efforts in making August a special month for all involved. Three weeks of fun and cultural experiences for our Kashiwa guests are made possible through detailed planning of these committees involving things such as coordinating admissions to activities and events, recruiting activity leaders, finding translators, planning meals, organizing transportation, coordinating Torrance host families, and so much more.

An important aspect of the student exchanges are accommodations with host families. Thank you to the following Kashiwa families who are graciously sharing their homes and families with our Torrance students in July: Akita, Fukui, Iida, Kishida, Kitazawa, Kobayashi, Konno, Nakanishi, Nishino, Nomoto, Shimaoka, Tachizawa, Takahashi, Unozawa, Watanabe, and Yamamoto. TSCA is very grateful to all families for their warm and very personal hospitality.

Similarly, we thank the following Torrance families for being hosts to our Kashiwa guests in August: Aiello, Briseno-Contreras, Diederich, Fu, Haugen, Hirashiki, Ihde-Dunlap, Little, Lum, Newhart, Penland, Shetti, Staal, Warner, and Wilson. The memories will last a lifetime, especially for the student delegates. Thank you for being an important foundation of our exchange program.

Thank you to the planning committee in Kashiwa – the Torrance Committee of KIRA (Kashiwa International Relations Association) – and the many members who have worked so hard to organize the activities and host families for the Torrance students. We truly appreciate your efforts to make this trip so memorable.

To our members, families, and friends: please check the detailed calendar and order form provided in this newsletter for August activities. If you would like to participate, please submit by the deadline. It's a great time to meet the Torrance and Kashiwa delegates and other TSCA members. Don't forget to include the emergency form that must accompany each order. We hope you will join us for a memorable August.

Our Mission Statement is achieved through the dedicated volunteer efforts of the board members, TSCA members, and hundreds of community members who all have the same vision in bridging our global communities together. We are forever grateful for everyone's contribution. ☘

Trash Management in Japan

Regan Galinato, 2018 Student Delegate

Pollution in the environment is a growing problem and waste management is a very important factor to control it. Japan has a sophisticated waste separation system for homes. It is very detailed and requires a lot more labor than the United States where we only separate waste into two big bins labeled “trash” and “recycling”. As someone who is interested in studying ways to protect the environment in the future, it was fascinating to see how differently the Japanese and Americans treat their waste.

Looking back at my time in Japan, I remember being confused and a little irritated not to have access to trash cans in public. Most of the time I ended up carrying around my trash to deal with it at my host family’s house. Some of it accidentally returned to America with me. The lack of public trash cans is not without reason. Having no trash cans in public encourages the Japanese to use their complex waste sorting system at home. Carrying around my own trash also helped me become more aware of the amount of trash I create on a daily basis.

In Kashiwa, there are various different categories to sort trash into: recyclables, hazardous waste, plastic containers and packaging, burnable and non-burnable garbage, as well as green waste. For each category, there is a specific way that they should be presented on their given pick up days. For example, paper, cardboard, and used clothes must be separate, held together with string, and put out every other Thursday.

Garbage collection calendar for Kashiwa. Each color represents a different waste category.

Public waste sorting bins

Even though separating recyclables is a lot of work, there are many benefits. The recyclables are very profitable because they increase the amount of products that are made from recycled materials, which decreases the amount of energy spent on harvesting raw materials needed to make the same product, and the amount of trash that goes to incinerators and landfills.

The lack of land in Japan, necessitates a waste management alternative for landfill. A lot of the waste can be burned in incinerators or “Waste to Energy” systems that create electricity from the heat of burned waste. Non-recyclable materials need to be sorted to best dispose of the waste. Hazardous waste, which is either dangerous to the environment or to us, cannot be thrown in a landfill. Other types of waste, such as old Tupperware, shouldn’t be burned because they release toxic chemicals into the atmosphere.

I don’t think that the United States will have a waste management system anywhere near as complex as Japan’s in the near future. It would be a massive culture shock to completely change the way that we throw things away, but I think we can take small steps to encourage more environmentally friendly behavior. It’s never too late to start consciously thinking about your individual impact on the environment. Even if you think you’re just one person out of seven billion on the planet, every little thing adds up. ☸

TSCA Members, Ray and Gail Roulette, were awarded the 2019 West High Community Service Award

“This special recognition is awarded to community members who have shown outstanding service and dedication to the Torrance and West High School community. We are honoring two community members this evening. To share a little about this amazing couple, their children attended and graduated from West High, and one of their children even moved on to work for TUSD. This couple are dedicated attendees and supporters of West High sporting and fine art events and seen regularly cheering on our students and staff. One has served on our TUSD Bond Site Committee to help all of TUSD in moving forward with school site renovations and improvements, in addition to serving as President of the Torrance Sister City program. Education was both a career, and of great importance to this couple. The past two years, this couple has started a scholarship in their name at West High. It is a sizeable TUSD local scholarship that West receives to bestow on one of our deserving students. Let me introduce to you the 2019 West High Community Award recipients of Ray and Gail Roulette! English Teacher Report

Looking Back and Looking Forward

Brandon Matsumoto

Summer is finally here, and the recent jump in temperature gives us a sense of how hot this summer will be in Japan. The anxious students are gearing up for their final examinations and frantically doing everything they can to get that passing grade. It's amazing to see how hard they work. I really hope they continue to strive and do their best. It's been almost a year since I arrived in Kashiwa. Japan is a small country, yet, in such a short time, I have been on countless adventures discovering the hidden gems throughout this nation. I wish I could write an article every week. There's an infinite amount of wild cultural stories, beautiful views, and great experiences I want to write about. In this article, I want to share three of my favorite places I have visited.

Recently, I discovered a unique spot in a town called Hakone. Hakone is famous for its hot springs and beautiful green forests that stretches for miles. My friends and I drove over four hours, traveling along the scenic coast of Japan, and arrived at a hot spring amusement park called Yunessun. Visitors go into the amusement park with swimsuits and take a dip into something quite unusual. Guests can choose to bathe in a hot spring with red wine, coffee, green tea, or sake. This spa is very popular among families with children. There's even a pool where fish nibble at your feet. I definitely recommend this unique place for your next visit.

Yunessun Hot Springs in Hakone

Team Lab Digital Art Museum in Odaiba

The Team Lab Digital Art Museum was an experience that left me speechless and in a daze. It was absolutely mesmerizing to witness how far technology has come. They mix sounds with visual projections and guests are transported to another dimension. There is one exhibit where you enter a room full of water that goes up to your knees while a spectrum of colors and flowers and koi fish are projected all around by high tech equipment.

The Odaiba Meat Festival was an event that I felt so lucky to stumble upon. Many popular meat restaurants in Tokyo all gather together at one festival to show off their best dishes to very hungry customers. I thought these things only happened in dreams. To top it off, there's also a beer festival where the various breweries from all over Japan, show off their best beers. Towards the back of the festival, a stage with flashy performances hyped up the whole crowd. From J-pop to rock and roll, the crowd was going crazy, jumping and headbanging to show appreciation for the music. Japan keeps continuing to surprise me.

These festivals are only the tip of the iceberg. There are so many more festivals to see and so many more places to discover. This adventure is endless.

Here is my recap video. Enjoy! ☘
